Walking Trails

Haggetts Pond Trail

Enter at Haggetts Pond Rd 1/16 mi from the Rte. 133 intersection. There are 2 trail options. Follow the main trail straight which ends at High Plain Rd or bear right at the end onto the trail that loops around Haggetts Pond on the north side. The trail ends near the water treatment plant on Rte. 133. The terrain is flat and the views of the pond are wonderful, especially in the fall.

Cochran Wildlife Sanctuary

at Phillips Academy. Access at the end of Chapel Ave off Rte. 28. During the spring the Rhododendrons and Mountain Laurel are in full bloom. The main trail traverses around a pond in the middle of the sanctuary. There are wide smooth trails with a good variation of elevation changes that ascend through hemlock groves.

Andover Village Improvement Society (AVIS) owns over 1000 acres on 25 Reservations open to the public for walking. See avisandover.org

Quietly serving up to 70 families a week in the Merrimack Valley, Project Home Again is an all-volunteer organization that provides basic household necessities and furnishings—at no cost—to the most needy among us.

project home again

By Tom Draheim

Andover resident Nancy Kanell founded Project Home Again in 2003. "Our biggest need is always in the winter. This winter's Lawrence fire victims really needed help. But we need to do more on a regular basis because on any given day you could find 150 families who have nothing," she said.

Nancy tells the story about how the project began: "I got started when an acquaintance who was a battered woman spoke to me about her broken oven. She didn't have the money to buy a new one, and I was determined to find a way to help her. So I posted an ad in the Temple Emanuel bulletin asking if anybody was remodeling their kitchen and could spare an oven. Within days she had a working oven."

The project eventually outgrew Nancy's house and garage. Andover's Temple Emanuel now provides office space and Forevergreen Lawn and Landscape has provided trucks and workers for the past four winters to help pick up and deliver household items and furniture. Ozzy Properties donates warehouse space at Heritage Place in Lawrence. Fifteen volunteers, mostly from Temple Emanuel, staff the warehouse, which is open three days a week, except during the summer.

Families in need are referred to Project Home Again by their social workers. "We work with about 50 different social service agencies in the Merrimack Valley, they do the 'triage' and bring us people most in need," said Nancy.

Project Home Again can use almost anything: "beds and dressers, basic items like linens, pots and pans, everything you need to set up a house," she said. "Go through your drawers and cabinets, if you've got three spatulas give us one, extra bed sheets or towels, even things like tools and flashlights."

"We are looking for furniture in good condition, upholstered items should not be torn or stained. People in need still have dignity and we try to make them feel good about their visit to PHA," she added. The Project does not collect clothing or food, "other agencies already do a good job of that."

"I can say I've got ten people waiting for cribs right now, but if I tell the family's story it helps people to donate." Nancy told the story of a woman who brought a beautiful crib to the warehouse that she didn't need anymore, "but she was so emotionally attached to the crib she was reluctant to part with it. I asked her to stay at the warehouse and find out where it was going.

"The couple came to pick up the crib and the father explained to me how he was working two jobs and looking for a third so his wife could quit work and stay home when the baby came.

The woman who donated the crib overheard this conversation and she told me later 'I'm just so happy their baby is going to sleep in that crib.'"

Project Home Again can also use cash donations to buy new things. They have received grants for the last three years from the Merrimack Valley Jewish Federation and Keller Williams Realty in Andover, Quota International of Andover, and the Mother Connection have all made significant financial contributions.

To donate items in good condition, make a cash contribution or volunteer time—"We really need other businesses to donate trucks and drivers," Nancy added—contact Nancy Kanell and Project Home Again at the Temple Emanuel office: 978-470-1356, or email her at: projecthomeagain@comcast.net. Or visit the PHA website at www.projecthomeagain.us.

The Ice Cream is homemade and in the summer they use fresh fruit from local farms to make some wonderful flavors. The portions are great and they will hand pack a quart to take home. The atmosphere is family friendly and is a great place to take a ride with the kids and enjoy the countryside or on your way to Newburyport. They are closed during the winter months.
